SECTION B — Short Answer Questions (2 Marks each)

- Analyse how the poem "Together We Can" uses rhyme and rhythm to reinforce its message of unity. (0 Marks)
► The rhyming pattern and steady rhythm of the poem create a sense of harmony and togetherness in how it sounds, which mirrors and reinforces the poem's message about people working together in unity and support.
- Explain why Chinna's grandfather giving him money for tinkling bells might be significant to the story's emotional impact. (0 Marks)
► Since the money was a special gift from his grandfather, losing it likely felt more emotionally significant to Chinna than losing ordinary money, which helps explain why he became so upset and adds emotional depth to the story.
- Discuss how Kamala's response to Chinna's situation models a positive way to respond to a friend in distress. (0 Marks)
► Instead of ignoring Chinna or making him feel worse, Kamala listens, comforts him, and takes practical action to help solve his problem, modelling empathy combined with helpful action as a positive way to support a friend in distress.
- Explain why "Be Smart, Be Safe" likely uses simple, direct instructions (like "stop, look, cross") rather than long explanations. (0 Marks) ► Simple, direct instructions are easier for young children to remember and quickly apply in real situations, which is especially important for safety advice that needs to be followed correctly and quickly near traffic.

5. Compare the tone of "Together We Can" (a poem) with "The Tinkling Bells" (a story) - how does the format affect how each message is delivered? (0 Marks)

► As a poem, "Together We Can" delivers its message through rhythm, emotion, and concise, memorable lines, while "The Tinkling Bells", as a narrative story, delivers its message through a sequence of events and character actions, allowing readers to see the lesson play out in a more detailed, relatable scenario.

6. Explain how the specific road safety rules in "Be Smart, Be Safe" (footpath, zebra crossing, no headphones) work together as a complete safety system. (0 Marks)

► Each rule addresses a different risk - walking on the footpath avoids being near moving traffic, using a zebra crossing ensures crossing at a recognised safe point, and avoiding headphones ensures full awareness of surrounding traffic sounds - together forming a complete, layered approach to staying safe near roads.

7. Why might the theme of trust, mentioned in "Together We Can", also apply indirectly to the relationship between Chinna and Kamala in "The Tinkling Bells"? (0 Marks)

► Chinna trusts Kamala enough to show his true feelings when upset, and Kamala's reliable, caring response reinforces that trust, showing the same kind of dependable friendship that "Together We Can" describes, even though the chapters are in different formats.

8. Discuss why teaching children about both teamwork/friendship AND personal safety might be considered complementary lessons for this stage of school. (0 Marks)

► While teamwork and friendship lessons teach children how to support and relate well to others, safety lessons teach them how to protect themselves; together, these lessons build children who can both care for others and take responsibility for their own wellbeing, forming a well-rounded set of life skills.

9. Explain what might have happened in "The Tinkling Bells" if Kamala had not noticed or helped Chinna. (0 Marks)

► Without Kamala's help, Chinna might have remained upset and disappointed, possibly without getting the bells at all, showing through this contrast just how much of a positive difference a caring friend can make in a difficult situation.

10. Why does "Be Smart, Be Safe" likely target behaviours that are common but risky (like running across roads or using headphones) rather than rare dangers? (0 Marks)

► Focusing on common but risky behaviours makes the safety advice more relevant and useful in everyday situations, since children are far more likely to encounter these everyday risks than rare, unusual dangers, making the lessons more practical.

SECTION C — Short Answer Questions (Explain) (3 Marks each)

1. Analyse how "Together We Can" uses poetic devices (rhyme, repetition, imagery) to make its message about teamwork memorable for young readers. (0 Marks)

► The poem uses a steady rhyme scheme, which makes the lines easy to remember and gives the poem a musical, uplifting quality that matches its positive message.
► Repetition of ideas like unity and shared effort reinforces the central theme, ensuring young readers absorb the message even with a simple reading.
► Imagery, such as standing "strong and tall" together, creates a vivid, relatable picture of what teamwork looks and feels like, making the abstract idea of cooperation easier for children to visualise and understand.

2. Discuss how "The Tinkling Bells" balances a realistic, relatable problem (losing money) with a hopeful, positive resolution, and explain why this balance matters for young readers. (0 Marks)

► The story presents a very relatable problem for children - losing something valuable and feeling upset about it - which helps readers connect emotionally with Chinna's experience.
► The positive resolution, where Kamala helps solve the problem, shows readers that difficult situations can often be improved with the help of caring friends, without dismissing the initial disappointment as unimportant.
► This balance matters because it teaches children that while problems and disappointments are a normal part of life, seeking help and support from others can lead to positive outcomes, an important and realistic life lesson.

3. Evaluate whether the road safety instructions in "Be Smart, Be Safe" are equally easy to remember and apply, or if some instructions might be harder for young children to follow consistently. (0 Marks)

► Simple physical actions, like using a zebra crossing or walking on the footpath, are likely easy for children to remember and follow, since they involve clear, repeated locations or paths.
► More situational judgment-based instructions, like knowing when it is truly safe to cross after checking both directions, might be harder for young children to apply consistently, since it requires accurately judging the speed and distance of approaching vehicles.
► This suggests that while the chapter provides a strong foundation, ongoing supervision and practice with an adult would likely be necessary to help children fully and safely apply these judgment-based skills in real traffic situations.

4. Discuss the connection between emotional support (as shown in "The Tinkling Bells") and safety awareness (as shown in "Be Smart, Be Safe"), and explain why both might be considered forms of "care". (0 Marks)

► Emotional support, as Kamala provides to Chinna, involves caring for someone's feelings and helping them through a difficult moment.
► Safety awareness involves caring for physical wellbeing, by following rules that protect against accidents and harm.
► Both are forms of care because they focus on looking after wellbeing - one emotional, one physical - showing that caring for others (or oneself) can take different but equally important forms.

SECTION D — Long Answer Questions (5 Marks each)

1. Write a detailed essay analysing how "Together We Can", "The Tinkling Bells", and "Be Smart, Be Safe" together teach children about different forms of responsibility - toward others and toward themselves. (0 Marks)

- "Together We Can" teaches responsibility toward a team, showing that supporting and trusting others is necessary for collective success and happiness.
- "The Tinkling Bells" teaches personal responsibility toward friendship, showing that noticing and helping a friend in distress, as Kamala does, is an important way to care for those around us.
- "Be Smart, Be Safe" teaches responsibility toward oneself, showing that following safety rules protects our own wellbeing and, in turn, allows us to continue caring for others.
- Together, these three chapters build a complete picture of responsibility - to a team, to individual friends, and to oneself - showing that being a responsible, caring person involves balancing all three of these areas in daily life.

2. Imagine a new chapter is being added to this unit that combines the themes of teamwork, kindness, and safety. Write a short story outline (title, characters, and summary) that fits naturally alongside these three chapters. (0 Marks)

- This is a creative, open-ended writing task; there is no single correct answer, but strong responses should include a clear title, named characters, and a summary showing a problem and resolution.
- A strong answer might involve two friends who, through teamwork, help a younger child safely cross a busy road, combining elements of collaboration (Together We Can), kindness toward someone in need (The Tinkling Bells), and practical safety knowledge (Be Smart, Be Safe).
- The response should be evaluated on creativity, clarity of the story outline, and how well it connects to the moral themes already present in the three studied chapters.
